LACK OF AUTOPSY ON "BIG TIM" MAY HAVE HID CRIME

Bellevue Pathologists Say Coroners Missed Only Sure Way to Get Facts.

An effort to prove that former State Senator Timothy D. Sullivan might have come to his death through criminal violence instead of a mere railroad accident without the knowledge of the coroners, under the present system, was made by Commissioner of Accounts Wallestein at the hearing this afternoon.

The failure of Dr. John Rigelman, physician to Coroner Jerome Healy in the Bronx, to perform an autopsy during the two weeks the body remained unidentified at the Fordham Hospital and the Morgue made this possible, two expert pathologists from Bellevue testified.

The mangled condition of "Big Tim's" body when picked up on the New Haven Railroad tracks near Pelham Parkway on the morning of Aug. 31, 1913, after several trains had passed over it, might have been partly due to a criminal attack before the body was thrown on the tracks, was the opinion of Dr. Charles Norris, chief pathologist at Bellevue.

"Had the coroner's physician performed an autopsy he might have discovered evidence of poison and possibly a skull fractured by a black-jack or some other blunt instrument," Dr. Norris swore.

Dr. Douglas Symmers, associate pathologist with Dr. Norris, backed up the opinion of his chief.

"There was plenty of time for the coroner's physician to have performed an autopsy which would have settled whether the ex-Senator was the victim of an attack before the train passed over his body," said Dr. Symmers.

Police Sergeant Peter Enfield, who recognized the body of "Big Tim" at the Morgue on Sept. 12, two weeks after the finding of the body, testified he had made the identification from newspaper pictures.

One of the special features was a series of lantern slides showing some of the excellent road, bridge, culvert and construction and other public work by convict gangs last summer.

CLEVELAND CAN'T ACT TO GET TAXES FROM JOHN D. UNTIL JULY 2

Must Wait Until He Becomes Delinquent on $311,000,000 Assessment.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 27.—Actual steps to collect taxes on $311,000,000 worth of personal property that Deputy State Tax Commissioners contend John D. Rockefeller holds in Cuyahoga County cannot be taken until the taxes become delinquent July 2, 1915. That was stated to-day by William Agnew, one of the Commissioners.

Mr. Agnew said he and John D. Rockefeller, the other Commissioner, had not determined whether they would appeal to the State Tax Commission on the action of the Board of Control in allowing an abatement of $170,000 on the amount for which Rockefeller is listed.

Attorneys for Rockefeller have intimated they may appeal to the State Tax Commission or file suit in the United States Court to enjoin assessment on the ground that Mr. Rockefeller is a citizen of New York.

If the $311,000,000 remains on the tax duplicate the only procedure open in the State courts to enforce collection when the tax becomes delinquent next summer.

Ohio Prosecutor Says Next Move Is Rockefeller's.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 27.—"It is up to the attorney for Mr. Rockefeller to make the next move," said Attorney General Hogan to-day, when asked what would be the next step by the State of Ohio to collect taxes on the $311,000,000 valuation placed on the holdings of John D. Rockefeller.

"When a man's property is finally put upon the tax duplicate in Ohio, it is up to him to take action. If the taxes assessed are not to become a valid lien against his property."
